Why Should I Care About Unified Communications & Collaboration

We live in a world of infinite possibility. Collaboration holds the key to transforming your business in a ways that we're only starting to recognise. Collaboration is not just about the technology. It is a strategy that affects almost every part of the business from developing products and responding to competitors, to making decisions and interacting with customers. Unified Communication and Collaboration brings together multiple forms of communications, like voice, video and data services, along with related software applications into a single environment, improving business processes and making it easier for employees to connect.

Unified communications and collaboration can include component's like:

- Instant messaging: Chat.
- Presence: Knowing if a contact is free or busy.
- Unified messaging: The ability to retrieve all your message types from one central location.
- Conferencing applications: To connect larger groups and allow them to share informatin and ideas.
- Video conferencing: On your PC, mobile device and using room-based systems.
- Mobile applications: Extending unified communications and collaboration to smartphones and tablets.

Major Advantages Of Unified Communications & Collaboration

It makes for greater flexibility

Nowadays, collaboration systems like Smartphones and tablets allow the workers to work in a flexible way. Improved flexibility can lead to better effectiveness and efficiency. With mobile collaboration systems, employees can take advantage of productivity and creativity features. Introtel can provides you with all this services.

It brings an organization closer to its goals

When a department or group is collaborating properly, is able to interact seamlessly, openly share files, they can work more effectively.

It Involves working from home or other remote locations

By using collaboration tools, an organization make sure that all their employees-whether from headquarters, overseas offices or from those working from home benefit from continual interaction and real time information. This means that the organization will benefit from the expertise and knowledge of all the employees, regardless of their location.

Avoid wasting time

Unified communications and collaboration enables real-time presence across your organiza-tion, giving employees instant visibility into their coworkers' availability to connect via voice, IM or video.
